Su Dozen

Sudoku

a dozen dozen Su Dozen...

Welcome!

Welcome to Su Dozen!

The rules for these puzzles are the same as for a "regular" sudoku -- except there is more to fill in. But the goal is the same: arrange the digits 1-12 so that each appears exactly once in each row, once in each column, and once in each box.

Su Dozen is not really harder than Su Doku. The principles and tactics that work for a 9x9 grid work just as well for a 12x12. It takes some getting used to the boxes being non-symmetric, and it takes some additional tracking to handle the extra 3 values.

But what really makes a difference is the scale. Bigger is better, or at least more time consuming. Consider that a "regular" Su Doku has 81 cells, of which you might expect 24-28 to be clues. That leaves 53-57 cells for you to evaluate.

The Su Dozen in this collection have 144 cells, of which 56 are clues. That leaves 88 cells for you to evaluate -- more than any 9x9 Su Doku could possibly include!

The puzzles are ranked more or less in increasing order of difficulty. But given what I just said, even the "easy" puzzles are not all that easy. Give yourself plenty of time for any Su Dozen, and work your way up to the latter puzzles. The last four are of the "tear your hair out" variety. Approach with caution.

Enjoy the puzzles.

Regards,
Mark
